Why choose annexe living?

Embarking on a new chapter with semi-dependent living in an annexe offers numerous lifestyle benefits. There are many perks of multi-generational living, including strengthened family relationships through proximity, fostering a sense of community and belonging.

Unlock equity from the family home while benefiting from a lower cost of living. As well as adding value to the main house, it can also significantly reduce childcare expenses.

Annexe living is a great care home alternative. Compared to the investment in a care home, an annexe can offer a better return on investment within 3–5 years whilst maintaining independence in a familiar, comforting environment.

Who are iHus?

As the UK's leading specialist annexe provider, we bring unparalleled experience and expertise to every project. With 20 years of building excellence and bridging generations, iHus creates garden annexe homes that connect families. Through a dedicated culture of empathy and excellence, iHus focuses on designing annexes that respect the dignity of those transitioning from lifelong homes and those seeking to embrace multi-generational living.

When I started out, there were other companies building annexes, but I felt they just wanted to build a box, where I wanted to build a home.
